3. I've heard that stol-en sweets were quite the sweet-est sweets of Life, Why I once knew a mar-ried man who led a hap-py life, I've war, And things cost near-ly twice as much as what they did be-fore, For all, And so one night I thought I'd steal a kiss out in the hall, I of-ten heard men say "When I get wed I'll wear the pants" No in-stance I re-call when eggs were thir-ty cents per doz, We saw a fe-male stand-ing and crept up be-hind her back, And man can tell what kind he'll get It's all a game of chance.

have to cough up six-ty now It is-nt right be-cause.
quick be-fore she knew it why I gave her such a smack.

Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't, —
 Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't, —
 Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't, —

I got hitch'd to a girl and say, Now she drives me 'round all day And I had two in a swell ca - fé, O - pened one and let it lay And Sto-len sweets may be ver - y fine, Don't steal yours like I stole mine And may - be you'll get an an - gel It's ten to one you won't, My may - be you'll get a fresh one It's ten to one you won't, And may - be you'll pick a Ven - us It's ten to one you won't, The wife's right leg is wood you see She's half a wom - an half a tree, when I o - pened num - ber two A chic - ken said "Why How - de - do," one I kiss'd turned up the light And there she stood as black as night,

Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't. — don't. —
 Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't. — don't. —
 Some - times you get a good one and some - times you don't. — don't. —
